

MOLD TESTING & REMEDIATION

Water damage can cause rapid mold growth in your home or business. Particular types of mold and excess mold growth can be hazardous to you and your family's health. It is very important to address mold issues as soon as possible. The professionals at Valcon Contracting Corp. are trained to assess mold growth, administer mold testing and indoor air quality testing, create a secure mold containment area, and implement mold removal before beginning reconstruction.

At Valcon we specialize in Environmental Health and Safety. We do substantial assessment, take several moisture content measurements and are constantly analyzing the entire removal process to make sure that an authorized approval is achieved.

When you experience these types of losses, it is important to follow precise assessment, containment, removal, disposal and clearance procedures. Valcon Contracting Corp. has established a track record of respected and proven performances in the field of mold remediation that demonstrates our proficiency and dedication for a safe and healthy environment.
